Medicare Barbs Dominate Race

Romney, Obama spar over each other's plan to tame the program

Treasure Island, Fla.

Showing no signs of letting up, Mitt Romney and President Barack Obama are doubling down on claims the other would threaten seniors' golden years.

Both campaigns sharpened their critique of the other's Medicare policies in recent days as the already acrimonious race for the White House reached a new level. Romney's running mate, Rep. Paul Ryan of Wisconsin, on Saturday told seniors in Florida that he sees parallels with Europe's debt crisis that cut seniors' benefits and warned the same could happen in the United States.

Campaigning Saturday in New Hampshire, Obama said that Romney would tear apart Medicare.

As Obama and Romney spent Sunday attending church with their families, advisers from both campaigns sparred on talk shows.

TV interviewers pressed Romney aides to explain how the GOP ticket can restore Obama's proposed $716 billion cut in Medicare spending's growth over 10 years without worsening the program's projected shortfall in funding. Moderators also noted that Ryan originally joined Obama in backing the proposal.

President Barack Obama speaks Saturday in Windham, N.H., where he said his challenger, Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney, would tear apart Medicare.

Medicare a Top Priority, For Now

Rep. Paul Ryan has stood out in Washington for laying out tough spending choices that many lawmakers in both parties avoid. So it was almost inevitable that his selection as Mitt Romney's running mate would vault Medicare to the top of the campaign debate. But it isn't clear it will remain the top priority in an election that, to this point, has been a contest between Romney and President Barack Obama over who would be best for jobs and the economy. (AP)

Backstory

The debate's dominant topic remains how to tame Medicare's explosive growth. President Barack Obama's Medicare policies, included in his 2010 health-care overhaul, rely heavily on cutting payments to health-care providers. The plan Paul Ryan proposes would give future retirees a fixed amount of money to pick their health insurance from competing private plans or a government program. According to the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office, Medicare over time would spend thousands less per senior under the Ryan plan than under current policy. (AP)

Romney adviser Eric Fehrnstrom told CNN's "State of the Union" that Ryan and Romney are now in accord. The $716 billion can safely remain in the program, he said, because Romney will "introduce choice and competition through more private plans."

Obama aide Stephanie Cutter, also on CNN, said Romney's plan to keep the $716 billion in Medicare over 10 years would do nothing to shore up the program: "They're going to use taxpayer dollars to give subsidies to insurance companies."

Obama's proposed reductions would not hurt Medicare recipients, Cutter said, because he would create incentives for health providers to be more efficient. JIM KUHNHENN (AP)

Akin's Abortion Remark Draws Fire

GOP Senate nominee says conception rare in 'legitimate rapes'

St. Louis

Rep. Todd Akin, the newly christened GOP Senate nominee in Missouri, said in an interview airing Sunday that "legitimate rape" rarely causes pregnancy.

Explaining his no-exceptions policy on abortions, Akin was asked why he opposes abortion even when the pregnancy is the result of rape.

"First of all, from what I understand from doctors, [pregnancy from rape] is really rare," Akin told KTVI-TV in a clip posted to YouTube by the Democratic super PAC American Bridge. "If it's a legitimate rape, the female body has ways to try to shut that whole thing down."

Backstory

This month, Rep. Todd Akin won the state's Republican U.S. Senate primary by a comfortable margin of victory. During the primary, Akin enhanced his standing with TV ads in which former Arkansas governor and presidential candidate Mike Huckabee praised him as "a courageous conservative." Akin also has a long-established base among evangelical Christians, and was endorsed in the primary by more than 100 pastors. (AP)

Akin added: "But let's assume that maybe that didn't work or something. I think there should be some punishment, but the punishment ought to be on the rapist and not attacking the child."

Akin issued a statement Sunday afternoon saying he misspoke.

"In reviewing my off-the-cuff remarks, it's clear that I misspoke in this interview and it does not reflect the deep empathy I hold for the thousands of women who are raped and abused every year," he said. "I recognize that abortion, and particularly in the case of rape, is a very emotionally charged issue. But I believe deeply in the protection of all life and I do not believe that harming another innocent victim is the right course of action."

Akin's statement threatens to recast a Senate race in which he starts as the favorite, but national Republicans are concerned about his ability to execute a winning strategy. Akin won the GOP nomination two weeks ago — a result that Democrats hailed as a potential game-changer in a tough race for them.

Sen. Claire McCaskill, D-Mo., and national Democrats actually spent money in the GOP primary to help get Akin through it. That strategy, at least in this case, appears to be paying dividends.

McCaskill said she was outraged by Akin's claim.

"It is beyond comprehension that someone can be so ignorant about the emotional and physical trauma brought on by rape," McCaskill said in a statement. "The ideas that Todd Akin has expressed about the serious crime of rape and the impact on its victims are offensive." AARON BLAKE (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Uneasy Lull Settles Over Syria

As Muslim holiday begins, Aleppo sees a pause in bloodshed

Aleppo, Syria

A lull in fighting for a Muslim holiday Sunday allowed residents of Aleppo to take stock of their losses after three weeks of intense battles left many in Syria's largest city strapped for cash, separated from loved ones and scared of more violence.

Thousands across the country marched against President Bashar Assad in mosques and cemeteries after special prayers marking the start of the three-day Eid al-Fitr holiday, which caps the holy month of Ramadan. The holiday — usually a joyful time to remember the dead, dress up and visit family — followed a particularly bloody Ramadan when fighting erupted in Syria's two largest cities.

"There is no holiday," said Mohammed Radwan, 34, standing near an apartment building in Aleppo's Tariq al-Bab neighborhood, which was hit by an airstrike the day before. "The elec-

Shooting continues trend of attacks against NATO forces

A man in an Afghan police uniform shot and killed an international service member Sunday, NATO said, raising the death toll to 10 in such attacks over the span of two weeks.

Few details were immediately available about Sunday's killing of a coalition member in southern Afghanistan. NATO said it was investigating along with Afghan authorities. Afghan officials could not be reached for comment.

The Taliban have been actively recruiting members of the Afghan forces, saying in a statement last week that they considered the turncoat attacks a major part of their strategy against the coalition.

On Saturday, Defense Secretary Leon Panetta called Afghan Pres-

The surge in violence by Afghan allies against their international partners has raised doubts about the ability of the two forces to work together during a crucial transition phase. Afghan forces are scheduled to take over security for the country by the end of 2014.

Meanwhile, a coalition airstrike in the northeast killed dozens of Taliban militants, including one of their leaders, officials said. Kunar's governor said the strike killed as many as 50 insurgents. (AP)

Surrounded by British police who want to detain him, Assange made no mention of the sex assault case or how long he would remain in Ecuador's embassy in London, where he took refuge two months ago. Instead he shifted focus to the U.S., accusing the government of targeting him for revealing a trove of American diplomatic and military secrets.

"I ask President Obama to do the right thing," Assange said. "The United States must renounce its witch hunt against WikiLeaks."

"The United States must vow that it will not seek to prosecute our staff or our supporters," he said, referring specifically to Pfc. Bradley Manning, who awaits trial in Virginia in the scandal.

Assange and his supporters claim the Swedish case is the first move of a Washington-orchestrated plot to make him stand trial in the U.S., which Swedish authorities dispute.

The White House declined comment Sunday, but on Saturday said Assange's fate is an issue for Sweden, Britain and Ecuador to resolve.

Assange, a 41-year-old Australian, shot to international prominence in 2010 when WikiLeaks began publishing its cache of American secrets,

Earlier this month, the U.S. Army private claimed his harsh pretrial treatment merited dismissal of the case, according to documents from his lawyer. The motion alleges Manning developed a rash from a suicide-prevention blanket and suffered an anxiety attack because of harassment by guards. The Defense Department has said that Manning's treatment conformed to the "maximum custody" or "prevention of injury" classifications in which he was held in Quantico, Va., from July 29, 2010, to April 20, 2011, when he was moved to confinement at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. ## Key Leaks

WikiLeaks' tactics have riled governments around the world.

April 2010

WikiLeaks, under the heading "collateral murder," posts an edited 17-minute video portraying a U.S. Apache helicopter's assault on Iraqis in Baghdad that killed several civilians in 2007. Harsh criticism follows its release.

July 2010

WikiLeaks releases a trove of more than 91,000 classified documents about operations in Afghanistan.

Nov. 2010

WikiLeaks exposes the inner workings of U.S. diplomacy by releasing a trove of more than 250,000 confidential documents of State Department cables.

April 2011

WikiLeaks releases intelligence assessments of the 779 individuals who have been held at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, since the facility opened Jan. 11, 2002.

July 2012

WikiLeaks begins to release the first batch of more than 2.4 million Syria-related emails. (TWP) including 250,000 U.S. Embassy cables that highlighted sometimes embarrassing backroom dealings.

As he toured the globe to highlight the disclosures, two women accused him of sex offenses during a trip to Sweden. Assange has said the sex with the women was consensual and denied wrongdoing but has fought off efforts to return him to Sweden for questioning for two years.

Ecuador's president, Rafael Correa, granted Assange asylum Thursday, and he remains out of reach of British police while in the embassy. Britain says if he steps outside, he will be detained and sent to Sweden.

Assange praised Ecuador on Sunday as "a courageous Latin American nation" that "took a stand for justice" in offering him sanctuary. He claimed to have won support from a host of Latin American nations — including Brazil, Colombia, Chile, Mexico and Argentina. Of those five, however, only Argentina has endorsed Ecuador's decision to grant asylum.

The WikiLeaks founder gave no indication of how he believes the stalemate over his future may be resolved, though he said he hoped to be "reunited soon" with his two children.

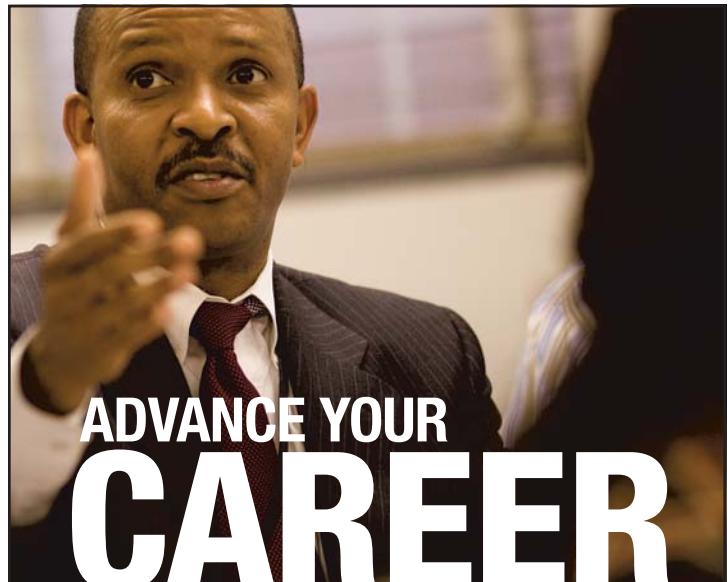

Former Spanish judge Baltasar Garzon, who is representing Assange, said Sunday that Ecuador could consider making an appeal to the International Court of Justice in the Hague to compel Britain to grant Assange safe passage out of the country.

Garzon, who won fame for aggressively taking on international human rights cases, is appealing Assange's conviction for overstepping his jurisdiction in a domestic corruption probe in Spain. DAVID STRINGER (AP)

Metro Plan Draws Ire

New SmarTrip-card machines won't have an audio option

Washington

Disability advocates for the region say Metro's plan to make SmarTrip cards more accessible to riders with new vending machines at every rail station falls short in one crucial area: They will not be particularly accessible to those with limited vision.

The new machines, which are scheduled to make their debut Sept. 1, have no audio feature. Riders who are blind or have impaired vision or those with cognitive impairments may find them difficult, if not impossible, to use, disability advocates said.

"In this day in time I can't imagine how ... the Metro system [is] purchasing things and then putting them, installing them and paying for them and they are not accessible to everyone," said Denise Rush, who is blind and serves on Metro's Accessibility Advisory Committee. "It is not acceptable. It is ludicrous."

Transit users with special needs said they already experience intimidating trips in a system known for its chronically broken escalators and elevators, poor lighting in the platforms and poorly functioning loudspeakers that make it difficult to hear the next-stop announcements on trains and buses.

"Traveling with partial sight is very difficult as it is," said Barbara Milleville, president of National Capital Citizens With Low Vision. She said the lack of accessibility can be discouraging to those who depend on public transit.

Jane Sheehan, a 54-year-old blind woman, rides with her yellow lab Nugget in 2009.

A Moot Point

Metro spokesman Dan Stessel called the audio feature "somewhat of a moot point." He said the new machines will sell only standard SmarTrip cards, not the reduced-fare cards someone with a disability would use.

Braille and would benefit from an audible prompt similar to the ones in automated teller machines.

Under the Americans With Disabilities Act, Metro must provide equal access to public transit for those with disabilities.

The transit system also encourages nearly 6,000 people with a disability to use its rail and bus services instead of the more costly door-to-door MetroAccess service.

"We sit here, we talk and we talk and we talk about why are all these people using paratransit and not using the fixed-rate system," said Deborah Brown, president of the National Federation of the Blind, a regular Metro user and member of the AAC. "And then we go and do something like this. This is why."

The advisory board recommended Doug Allen, 58, a veteran of transit systems in Austin and Dallas, for the job filling in for former CEO Dale Zehner, who stepped down in July. "It's just a great service," Allen said. "There's such a great demand for it." VRE's governing bodies must give final approval. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Md., Va. Governors Spar Over Romney

O'Malley, McDonnell argue about taxes on 'Meet the Press'

Washington

Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley, a Democrat, and Virginia Gov. Bob McDonnell, a Republican, sparred over Mitt Romney's tax returns, Medicare and the tone of the presidential campaign on NBC's "Meet the Press" on Sunday.

Their appearance came a week after McDonnell, who'd often been mentioned as a potential No. 2 on Romney's ticket, helped the former Massachusetts governor squire his new vice presidential pick, Paul Ryan, around Virginia. O'Malley managed to rub a little salt into McDonnell's wound as he defended the Democrats' interest in Romney's tax returns.

"I know when reviewing tax returns of vice presidential hopefuls like Governor McDonnell or, indeed, Paul Ryan, he asked for more than one year of tax returns," O'Malley said.

Moderator David Gregory pressed O'Malley for any evidence that Romney had not paid all legally required taxes. O'Malley blamed Romney for making his returns an issue — "the big secret of the campaign" — because he had released just two years' worth.

"We know that he has been engaged in tax-avoidance schemes with offshore accounts in the Cayman Islands and the Bahamas," O'Malley said. "It's not unlawful, but it is tax avoidance. At a time when our country needs everyone's help to accelerate our nation's recovery, he's hiding his money."

McDonnell shot back: "That's just flat wrong, Martin. ... This isn't what the American people care about. This is below their dignity. This is about how do we get the greatest country on earth out of debt and back to work."

Pr. George's Names Schools Chief

Upper Marlboro, Md.

Prince George's County has named a District of Columbia educator as its interim schools chief.

School officials say Alvin Crawley, the deputy chief of programming for the district's special education office, will take over Sept. 4. He will replace Superintendent William Hite Jr., who stepped down to lead the Philadelphia school system. The county school board has said it expects to select a permanent replacement by next spring.

School board Chairman Verjeanna Jacobs said that Crawley will provide stability as the board searches for a new superintendent.

Crawley, who has never led a school district, takes over a 123,000-student system that has also lost its deputy superintendent in the past two months. (AP)

Protection Problems

A top area of concern when training camp began—the ability of the offensive line to protect rookie quarterback Robert Griffin III—showed up Saturday. Griffin was sacked three times in the first half as the starters exited with a 20-10 half-time deficit. The Redskins remained without three injured starters on their offensive line. Right guard Chris Chester could return soon from his absence because of a sprained ankle, and the Redskins hope to have left guard Kory Lichtensteiger back from arthroscopic knee surgery for the regular season opener. But the playing status of right tackle Jammal Brown remains unclear as he undergoes treatment on his ailing hip and he and the Redskins cross their fingers that he can avoid another surgery.

Banks Delivers

The Redskins' only first-half touchdown came on a 91-yard punt return by Brandon Banks. The Bears led, 27-10, after returning the opening kickoff of the second half for a touchdown.

Cousins Excels

At least the Redskins could savor an eye-catching second-half showing by their other rookie quarterback, Kirk Cousins, who completed 18 of 23 passes for 264 yards and three touchdowns. He had a passer rating of 154.1, just shy of a perfect rating of 158.3. Cousins played the entire second half while veteran quarterback Rex Grossman remained on the sideline. Grossman's experience makes him likely to be the team's primary backup to Griffin when the regular season arrives. But Cousins showed Saturday why the Redskins and other NFL talent evaluators feel he has promise.

Ailing Orakpo

Brian Orakpo, Washington's top pass rusher and sack leader last season, grabbed his left arm as he fell to the ground Saturday following a tackle attempt on Bears wide receiver Devin Hester, and he had his shoulder wrapped after being helped to the sideline. Orakpo said after the game that the injury could be related to the torn pectoral muscle he suffered on that side in the final game of last season, which required offseason surgery. Orakpo's agent, Ben Dogra, said Sunday that the injury showed no serious damage and Orakpo is expected to be ready to play in the regular season opener against the New Orleans Saints on Sept. 9.

Under the Meriweather

Safety Brandon Meriweather injured his left knee on the second of two touchdown runs by Bears tailback Michael Bush. The Redskins' secondary already has its issues even before Meriweather's injury is factored in. Bears quarterbacks Jay Cutler and Jason Campbell combined for 224 first-half passing yards Saturday. An MRI exam on Sunday revealed no significant damage, according to a source.

Johnson started the race from the back because of an engine change, but made it all the way to the lead and looked as though he had the superior car after passing Brad Keselowski on lap 191 of 200. But Johnson couldn't hold on, and Biffle took advantage.

After Johnson faltered, there was a caution for oil on the track. Biffle held off Keselowski by 0.416 seconds in the green-white-checkered finish. Kasey Kahne finished third in the 400-mile race. (AP)

Robert Pattinson has lined up roles in a slew of gritty films, ready to leave 'Twilight' behind

Personalities

Robert Pattinson was nearing the end of shooting the last "Twilight" film, concluding a chapter of his life that had picked him out of near obscurity and was preparing to spit him out ... where exactly? "Twilight" had made him extravagantly famous, but his next steps were entirely uncertain.

"Out of the blue," he says, came the script for "Cosmopolis" from David Cronenberg, the revered Canadian director of psychological thrillers ("Videodrome," "Eastern Promises") that often pursue the spirit through the body. Pattinson, having never met or spoken to Cronenberg, did a little research: He looked him up on Rotten Tomatoes "and it was like 98 percent approval," he says.

"It was like: OK, that's my next job," Pattinson says.

Pattinson now has the unenviable task of releasing his most ambitious movie, his most adult role, into a media storm that instinct would suggest should be run from like a pack of werewolves. Promoting "Cosmopolis," which is in local theaters Friday, puts Pattinson in front of cameras and microphones after his "Twilight" co-star and girlfriend Kristen Stewart last month publicly apologized for having a

One Wild Limo Ride

"Cosmopolis" is about a sleek financier, Eric Parker (Robert Pattinson), slowly making his way in the sanctuary of his stretch limo across a traffic-jammed Manhattan with the simple goal of a haircut. But the daylong journey, which includes visits from his wife, a prostitute and Occupy-like protesters, is a kind of willful unraveling for Parker, who watches his fortune slide away on a bad bet. tryst with director Rupert Sanders.

The awkward circumstance, he says, is "dissociated" from the film, and he's declined to make a public response to the scandal. Rather, he's sought to deflect it to "Cosmopolis," a film that he says "changed the way I see myself."

At 26, Pattinson seems energized by the freedom of choice in front of him following the final "Twilight" installment, which will be released in November. He's lined up parts in gritty films far from blockbuster size: "Mission: Black List," a military thriller, and "The Rover" by Australian director David Michod ("Animal Kingdom"), a role he says he fought for more than any before.

"As soon as you start existing in a certain world, you feel like you have tremendous amount of baggage all the time."

Embarking on "Cosmopolis" appears to have been a process of letting go for Pattinson — of self-awareness, of worry, of fear. Asked if he now feels certain he's an actor, he quickly replies, "No."

"As soon as you start existing in a certain world, you feel like you have tremendous amount of baggage all the time," he says. "You get stuck in this rut where you want people to think you're something else, but you're too scared to do what that is to actually be the other person."

"Then you get a gift like this movie where it's way easier than I thought it was," he says. "You just do it. It doesn't really matter if you fail."

Putting Down the Pen: Three years after revealing that he has Parkinson's disease, comic-strip creator Richard Thompson, 54, says he will end his popular "Cul de Sac" in September. "Parkinson's disease is horribly selfish and demanding," Thompson says. "A daily comic strip is, too, and I can only deal with one at a time." "Cul de Sac" debuted as a weekly feature in The Washington Post's magazine in 2004 and is now syndicated to more than 250 newspapers. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

An undercover mole faces moral conflicts in 'Sleeping Dogs'

You spot the car and tear the driver from the front seat, kicking him in the midsection before speeding off to claim your money.

Dogs" (for Xbox 360, PlayStation 3, $59.99; for PC, $49.99).

As undercover mole Wei Shen, you are tasked with infiltrating the Sun On Yee triad in a fictionalized and fantastically rendered version of Hong Kong. This simple premise sets up a series of moral dilemmas: Can you push yourself to the limit to gain trust and rise in the triad's hierarchy? Or will you waver and risk blowing your cover?

"Sleeping Dogs" is played in the traditional, over-the-shoulder view of the "Grand Theft Auto" franchise. But the fluid combat, the shooting mechanic and the exotic locale help it stand out quite a bit.

The great voice acting — including Tom Wilkinson and Emma Stone, among others — and a solid script keep you engaged through a few clever twists and turns. Wei Shen's moral ambiguity and his personal stake in taking down the Sun On Yee begin to weigh on him as the game moves forward, making him one of the more well-drawn characters in the genre.

Host Jay Leno takes a pay cut as NBC trims its spending

NBC Universal imposed the cutbacks Friday, according to a person familiar with the moves.

The number of "Tonight Show" workers who were laid off Friday, about 10 percent of the staff. Host Jay Leno took a pay cut to spare other staffers.

The payroll purge affected about 10 percent of the roughly 200 people who work on "The Tonight Show," still the top-rated late-night program.

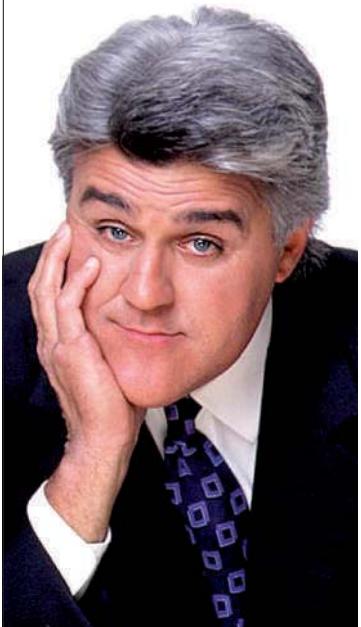

NBC Universal is trying to improve its financial performance under the ownership of Comcast Corp., which bought the entertainment company last year.

Leno had been making between $25 million to $30 million annually as the host of "The Tonight Show." His salary will be reduced to about $20 million after making the job-saving concessions.

"Jay's foremost concern is for the wonderful people who work with him at 'The Tonight Show,'" said Bruce Bobbins, a spokesman for Leno. "He did what was necessary to ensure their well-being."

Despite its solid ratings, "The Tonight Show" hasn't been a big moneymaker. That prompted the cuts Friday. (AP)

TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE? NOT WHEN IT'S PENFED.

We don't blame you for being suspicious. There are a lot of mortgage tricks out there. At PenFed, we mean what we say.

Our 5/5 Adjustable Rate Mortgage is better than the other guys' A.R.M., because it adjusts only once every 5 years, not every year. Plus, you can borrow up to $4 million. There's more:

- We pay up to $10,000 in closing costs.<sup>1</sup> You pay escrow and prepaid interest when you use one of our preferred title companies.<sup>2</sup>
- No origination or processing fees
- Free 90-day rate lock<sup>3</sup>

For a rate you can trust, visit PenFed.org/DCMortgage or call 866.386.7211

CREDIT UNION FAQ

WHAT IS A CREDIT UNION?

Much like a bank, credit unions offer financial services like checking and savings accounts, car loan, mortgages and credit cards. Some even offer investment services and insurance. The difference is that federal credit unions are non-profit, cooperative financial institutions. They are owned and run by their members.

Why should I join?

You will usually find higher savings rates for savings accounts and CDs, and lower borrowing rates for loans and credit cards, at credit unions. Plus, since credit unions are nonprofit, fees are kept to a minimum.

What does it cost?

Credit unions typically require that you maintain a deposit of around $5 or $10 in your "share" or savings account. That's it.

How do I access my money?

Credit unions have branches with tellers, and ATM machines too. You can sign up for a debit card to access your checking account money as well. In practice, there is very little difference between your credit union and a corporately-owned bank.

How do I join?

Find one that fits you. Each credit union serves different groups. For instance: people who work for the same employer; those who live in a specific area; or members of a certain association. Most credit unions allow family members to join as well, so check and see if someone in your family is already a member of a credit union.

Is my money safe?

Yes. Deposits of up to $250,000 are insured by the National Credit Union Administration. This is the same amount as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insures for each depositor at a commercial bank.

'Locked Up Abroad' recounts the capture of two journalists

Dramatization

NAT GEO 10:00 Many of the folks featured on "Locked Up Abroad" are the authors of their own misfortunes. They apparently were born without that inner voice that tells most people not to smuggle drugs into Turkey or Thailand, or to accept mysterious luggage from strangers. It's easy to pity them for their suffering, but it's harder to sympathize with their actions.

The subjects in tonight's episode, "Nightmare in Somalia," are different. Australian photographer Nigel Brennan and Canadian reporter Amanda Lindhout traveled to Somalia in 2008 to report on that nation's continuing conflict. On their way to document conditions in a refugee camp, they were kidnapped by armed bandits. Although the journalists' captors forced them to convert to Islam, the kidnappers' motivations were neither religious nor political, but economic: They wanted millions of dollars in ransom.

"Locked Up Abroad" reenacts the moment two journalists were captured in Somalia.

"Nightmare" does an effective job of evoking the paranoia and indignities of the situation. It recalls Brennan's frequent resentment of his fellow journalist. The fact that the two victims didn't always like each other adds a touch of realism to this harrowing account.

Despite their differences, the two captives managed to escape from their cells. They were recaptured and faced an even more gruesome form of incarceration, all before being freed more than a year after their initial capture.

The Glass House This reality series premiered under a cloud of controversy, with CBS claiming it was a blatant rip-off of "Big Brother." Nevertheless, it made it through its initial, 10-episode run, which ends tonight. On Friday, CBS even dropped its lawsuit against ABC. (TRIBUNE MEDIA/AP)

Stuck in the Middle

MTV reaches across the pond again for its newest series "The Inbetweeners" (10:30 p.m.). Hugely successful in the U.K., this remake follows the misadventures of four teens who are neither the coolest nor the lamest dudes in school (hence the title). Joey Pollari, above, stars as Will, the new kid who befriends Simon, Jay and Neil to form the titular crew. (EXPRESS)

Shawn Brandon, Mo Goff

Shawn, 46, right, is a Lutheran pastor. Mo, 47, is a lobbyist. They live in D.C.

THE MAIN EVENT: They wed Aug. 18 in a Lutheran church on Capitol Hill. Their processional was the hymn "Joyful, Joyful We Adore Thee," sung first by their guests and then by a choir, gospel-style.

HOW THEY MET: While in Minneapolis for a conference for LGBTQ Lutherans. "Our eyes first met during opening worship," Mo says.

FIRST KISS: After the conference. "I didn't know whether we'd meet again," Mo says. "I just had to do it."

FIRST DATE: Mo was living in D.C.; Shawn was living along the Canadian border in Minnesota. "Our first date involved getting pulled over by U.S. Border Patrol for an interrogation," Shawn says.

HOW THEY PROPOSED: They proposed to each other in front of Trevi Fountain in Rome. A year later, Shawn presented Mo with a claddagh ring and a "proper" proposal.

MOST STUPID FIGHT: Over Mo's D.C. driving. "Hello?!" Mo says. "In D.C., we do what we have to do." Shawn: "In Minnesota, horns are only used to scare animals off the road — not to communicate with other drivers."

PET NAMES: Shawn is "Super Awesome," while Mo is "Captain Awesome."

Melissa Casemier, Scott Merrill

Melissa, 29, works for a professional society of actuaries. Scott, 31, works for Raytheon. They live in Rosslyn.

THE MAIN EVENT: They'll say their "I do's" Sept. 2 on a family friend's private beach on Lake Michigan.

HOW THEY MET: DC Bocce Ball. Their teams played each other in the first game of the season.

FIRST DATE: A movie at Arlington Cinema & Drafthouse and a visit to Solly U Street Tavern to play "Big Buck Hunter."

HOW HE PROPOSED: In a Scrabble game. "I admit, I rigged the game ... but only to give myself enough pieces to spell 'Will you marry me?'"

WHEN SHE KNEW: "When I realized he was the male version of me ... and I think I'm pretty cool."

WITH INFINITE FUNDS: Scott "would have a giant, fire-breathing, floating statue of Justin Timberlake off the shore of where we are getting married."

Kevin Strobush, Renee Wilson

Kevin, 32, is a federal police officer. Renee, 26, is a budget analyst for the Department of Justice. They live in Crystal City.

THE MAIN EVENT: Sept. 12 in Oahu, Hawaii.

HOW THEY MET: At a friend's party. "I had already seen him at work,"

Renee said, "but he sealed my interest when I saw him dancing in the middle of the bar by himself."

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "He looks sexy in that uniform!"

FIRST DATE: The Air and Space Museum, Starbucks and Zaytinya.

HOW HE PROPOSED: At their place. When she saw him changing into a suit, he lied and said he had a job interview and needed to make sure the suit fit. "Best lie he's ever told," she says. Then he got down on one knee in the bedroom and taped a "meet me in here" note to their cat.

OUR SONG: "Unchained Melody" by the Righteous Brothers. "We danced our first dance together to this song in the middle of my kitchen while making dinner," Renee says.

WHEN HE KNEW: Within a few months. "We went for a morning jog and halfway through I had this feeling. I had a tingling, heart-felt feeling in my mind and stomach."

B.I.O.

Blog Log

“Todd Akin, call your office.”

—@THEFIX had some advice for Rep. Todd Akin, the Republican nominee for Senate in Missouri, who claimed in an interview posted Sunday with KTVI-TV that victims of “legitimate rape” have biological defenses to prevent pregnancy. Akin is running against Sen. Claire McCaskill.

“If you’re going to remake of a remake, you might as well use it as an opportunity to have Bradley Cooper and Beyoncé smooch out onscreen. Are we right, or are we perverts? Clint Eastwood knows what we’re talking about!”

— Halle Kiefer at VH1.COM/CELEBRITY reacts to news that “according to Variety, the ‘Gran Torino’ director wants ‘The Hangover II’ star as the male lead of the Bey-lead reboot of ‘A Star Is Born.’”

“The guy behind me in the line at movie theater: ‘I’m so bored, I have nothing to do. I just want school to start.’ I never felt that way.”

— @GRANTHPAULSEN, a reporter at 106.7 The Fan, is glad he no longer has to go to school.

“Yes, for starfish RT @ukpapers: #Ukraine wants to ban cartoon SpongeBob Squarepants ... as it ‘promotes homosexuality’”

“There have been 23 perfect games out of 201,870 total games, AND TWO OF THEM HAPPENED THE FIRST TWO TIMES THIS BABY WAS IN THE STANDS. Put it another way. This baby is a ... wizard who is making perfect games happen and if my Cleveland Indians don’t give him season tickets for life and I mean tomorrow, I’ll hate them forever.”

— Jack Moore at BUZZFEED.COM can’t handle the fact that Bode Dockal and his dad, Paul Dockal, were both in attendance for the White Sox/Mariners game April 21st and last week’s Rays/Mariners game.

Horoscope

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your reasons for sticking to the game plan are many and sound—but you may still be tempted to explore other avenues.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are in no mood to be caught, once again, by a situation that makes life uncomfortable in many ways. You can steer clear.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) The schedule you have built for yourself may not hold up when things begin to accelerate beyond your influence or control.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Take care that you're not actually stalling when, in fact, you should be picking up the pace. You may be ruled by certain unknown fears.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You cannot be in the lead and go places that others are not going to want to follow. You must keep their needs squarely in mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can take things to the next level, but you'll want to know for sure that a new partner is completely on board.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You were better off resigning from a certain project than spinning your wheels simply because there's nothing better to do.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You will have to judge the value of certain assigned tasks with great care today. Some things are worth doing, but others ... not so much!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others are waiting for you to make a decision that will affect them directly over the next several days.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can keep certain fears at bay as you attempt something for a second or third time that you failed at before.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A change of heart is likely today. Those around you may express surprise when you do what seems to be out of character.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll want to mount your own investigation into events that others cannot adequately explain. Steer clear of anything overtly threatening.

Gossip Media Chastened, Go Back To Ruining Kristen Stewart's Life

Better Than Ezra COULD Use the Money ... Oh, Wait

Nick Offerman is auctioning the mustache he grew for his role as Ron Swanson in "Parks and Recreation," New York magazine's Vulture blog reported. The proceeds will benefit pediatric cancer charity Because of Ezra. Offerman had his mustache professionally shaved, reassembled and encased in museum-quality glass, all at his own expense. ## Word-Creation Nobel To Be Shared for 'Jeah'

Rapper MC Eiht says he's angry and offended that Ryan Lochte trademarked the word "Jeah!" on Aug. 1, TMZ.com reported. Eiht says he coined the word in 1988, and that he doesn't care about the money as much as "respect and the truth." "Why try and trademark something his ass didn't even create? I am mad that he isn't giving me proper recognition for taking my saying," Eiht said. "He is just disrespectful." Lochte's manager says the swimmer has been using "Jeah!" for years. (EXPRESS)

An NBC spokeswoman said the phrase is used often on the show — 27 times in the past two years. (EXPRESS)
